

New York, NY—November 1, 2007

Contact: Leila Nichols
Leila@BigTipsCandy.com

Come learn historical facts about the best-loved and most influential chocolate makers, and then purchase a special piece of chocolate history to take home from the 10th Annual NY CHOCOLATE SHOW.

Beth Kimmerle's carefully curated chocolate history exhibit features artifacts and antiques from her private collection. From advertisements to equipment, come view original vintage factory prints, packaging, recipes books and more. Fans of history, nostalgia, chocolate, cooking and the confectionery industry will enjoy this truly fascinating glimpse into the world of chocolate.

Using facts, images and artifacts from her book, Chocolate: The Sweet History, Beth's booth (#28) will be a special chocolate treat for the whole family. Beth Kimmerle, owner of Big Tips Candy, is the author of several confection books and the host of a candy making show, CANDYMONIUM.

Beth's chocolate history exhibit at the NY CHOCOLATE SHOW held at the Metropolitan Pavilion and Altman Building will run from November 9-11, 2007 in New York City. She is also a featured chef in the chocolate theater on Friday at 5:30 P.M.

The NY CHOCOLATE SHOW, a three-day festival devoted entirely to chocolate, remains a favorite outing. Last year there were over 80 participating chocolate companies and nearly 25,000 attendees including visitors and press.

This year Beth, a chocolate historian and confection creator, will delight chocolate lovers of all ages with:

- CHOCOLATE HISTORY EXHIBIT revealing the captivating back-story behind our favorite flavor
- CHOCOLATE CARAMEL making demonstration. Friday, Nov 9th at 5:30 in the "Chocolate Theater".
- A limited number of BIG TIPS CANDY collections for sale featuring America's favorite retro candy bars.
- Vintage chocolate merchandise and COLLECTIBLES: posters, advertising, trade cards and more!

